For more information and/or to sign up for AML Weekly Newsletter, visit <https://www.nclm.org/events-training/advancing-municipal-leaders>.

RECOMMENDED PARTNER RESOURCES

UNC School of Government

As you make the transition from campaigning to governing, the UNC School of Government is here to help. For more than 90 years, the SOG has offered training programs, research and writing, and real-time advising to North Carolina's public officials. They have built a legacy of trust based on being nonpartisan, policy neutral, and responsive. Three relevant resources available to you include:

1. Expert Advising & Consulting - SOG faculty are available by phone and email to consult on their areas of expertise.
2. Legislative Reporting Service - This free website provides immediate access to the daily business of the NC General Assembly.
3. Coates' Canons - This NC Local Government Law Blog is a joint effort of SOG faculty. Posts range from updates on legal developments to providing detailed analysis of complicated legal issues.

The Center for Public Leadership & Governance

You don't govern alone. The Center for Public Leadership & Governance (CPLG) has many offerings to help you gain skills to lead and manage change in your community. Within the center resides the Local Elected Leaders' Academy (LELA). It's a place within the SOG to help local elected officials and offers pathways for learning and recognition designed to meet your needs at any phase of your tenure in public office.
